

Paragon
Brand Services

01/05

REBRAND KILLER 5 OF 5

The Incomplete Toolkit Trap.

When creative dies in production.

Guidelines that look perfect on screen fall apart on the factory floor. The last trap, and the one that quietly dilutes the brand.

We've seen it all →

Paragon
Brand Services

02/05

THE INCOMPLETE TOOLKIT TRAP • SEEN IT

RGB black, specified for print.

Brand guidelines often lack technical depth. They look perfect in a presentation, then leave production teams to fill critical gaps with varying degrees of success.

It gets worse →

Paragon
Brand Services

03/05

THE INCOMPLETE TOOLKIT TRAP • SEEN IT

An entire brand book built in Google Docs.

By an agency paid millions. No material specifications. No rule for illuminated versus non-illuminated signage.

The result →

Paragon
Brand Services

04/05

THE INCOMPLETE TOOLKIT TRAP • THE REALITY

A brand shaped by local conditions, not the identity.

Without clear standards, something as fundamental as illumination varies from site to site. Each market interprets the brand its own way, and consistency goes with it.

The way out →

Paragon
Brand Services

05/05

THE INCOMPLETE TOOLKIT TRAP · THE WAY OUT

Stress test the brand book first.

Partner with an implementation specialist who can step upstream, test the guidelines against production reality and make sure the toolkit includes material specifications, not just hex codes.

That's all five traps. How to avoid each one is in The Execution Gap.

Read the white paper. Link in the post →